

SOCIO- DEMOGRAPHIC ANALYSIS OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

İpek Beyza Altıparmak

Dr., Abant İzzet Baysal University, Turkey, ipekbeyzaaltiparmak@hotmail.com

Abstract

Violence has a multifaceted characteristic. An objective and multifaceted viewpoint is needed to struggle against this social problem fed by multifaceted source. Violence is everywhere as a social problem that that to be struggled against. Family is one of these. The family comes forward as a place that a lot of private problems related with violence against women that cannot be explained. Some domestic violence attitudes stands in social life in some different forms. It is necessary to understand these codes, the situations that feed violence and the factor lying behind it. While determining these factors a different view of point will be given to this point of view. It is highly important to determine these sources feeding violence to gain this viewpoint.

When it is considered that violence against women has increased and some precautions should be taken the suggestions that can be proposed about the topic become more and more important again. Domestic violence in Turkey is analyzed in this study and interview data are given in the field part of the paper. Socio-demographic situation lies behind situations and events that stimulates violence. Such factors as age, economical and educational backgrounds are some of these. At this point a socio-demographic analysis for women facing violence is tried to be made taking 2013 data obtained from Ankara Center of Preventing and Monitoring Violence into consideration. The result is that victims of violence and the peers committing violence have the same socio-demographic features. At this point some solution suggestions about the lectures to be given and strengthening work are proposed.

Keywords: Domestic Violence, Women, Center of Preventing and Monitoring Violence.